Seed Library at the Baltimore Branch Library

A seed library is a place where community members can get seeds for free and is run for the public's benefit. We look forward to getting patrons to garden and grow some of their own food. We will work with willing participants to develop a network of seed savers in Fairfield County, to respond proactively to climate change or loss of gene integrity due to GMOs and to preserve genetic diversity. Seed saving is something humans have done for over 10,000 years. Rejoin the ritual and start to save seeds and share the abundance in your community. Throughout the summer and fall, stop by the Baltimore Branch to learn how to save seeds from the plants you grow in your own garden.

Seeds must be:

- Grown by the donor within the past year
- From non GMO/non hybrid plants
- Completely dry, free from debris, and in a sealed plastic bag
- Seeds in original packaging are accepted

Name of Plant:

Variety:

- Vegetable    Fruit    Flower
